

London Landscape

Shape the landscape of London!

Hina Taylor
London Landscape Editor

London Landscape is a section of the London Journal of Primary Care that has two purposes

Firstly to contain news about life in London general practice, particularly medico-political issues that has had an impact on general practice in London. Examples of issues are the impact of Alternative Provider Medical Services (APMS) and GPs with a special interest. I am also interested in news for the faculties as the journal will replace faculty wide journals.

Secondly to provide reflective pieces, some of which could be non medical, but provide insights into life in London. Examples could be the Congestion Charge and “A social event that nearly changed my life”. The latter piece should be a short article reviewing a social event e.g. a film, a festival or play that has taken place in London. It should review the event and also reflect upon the impact it had on the writer.

These pieces are intended to provide snapshots of the life of a GP/primary care practitioner or manager in London. Readers who practice in other large cities may gain an understanding of the similarities and differences with their own city.

We are looking for articles that 500-1000 words long that are lively informative and stimulate debate so please submit to

Correspondence to

Dr Hina Taylor
Course Director
B Med Sci Community Health Sciences
Centre for Health Sciences
2 Newark Street
London E1 2AT
h.taylor@qmul.ac.uk